

Cage fighters

Ride hard, look good...
and don't lose your bottle

Bottle cages are like bass players: you'll only notice them if they're bad – and that doesn't just apply to function. Not only should cages grip bottles tighter than a crab with a biro, they should also harmonise with your bike, themselves and the universe. Ride old-school steel? Get something elegant and polished. Cruise on carbon? Go composite or go home. Roll with a pair? Both cages should be identical. But most importantly, whatever your delectation, remember this simple mantra: cage colours should complement. And if you don't know what that means, just stick to black.
